Thanks for super speedy service

THANK you and congratulations for a very quick service on August Bank Holiday Monday. The night before at 11.45pm a vehicle was driving down Riefeld Road, Eltham, when it hit and knocked down three No Parking bollards on the footpath. The vehicle did not stop. The next morning at 9 o'clock I reported the damage to the council emergency phone number and by 10 o'clock one of your council engineers had arrived to fill in the two 18 inch deep holes and clear up the mess.

Once again thank you very much.

Fly the flag for Navy Day

AS an 'old' Merchant seaman I was pleased to see that the Red Ensign was being flown at the town hall in Woolwich on September 3 - Merchant
Navy day.
I would imagine that not many passer-bys even noticed that the flag was flying, or even understood why it was being flown today and it is a pity that the National Maritime Museum in Greenwich could not arrange to fly this flag today of all days.

Brian Cross, Greenwich

● Andy Bodle, director operations & HR at Royal Museums Greenwich,
said: "The Red Ensign was, and is, flown by the Cutty Sark (part of Royal Museums Greenwich),
with the ship itself a commemoration to the 'fourth service' in its own right, being placed in Greenwich in the 1950s as a permanent memorial to the Merchant Navy - with Maurice Lambert's

memorial to the MN displayed in the ship's dry dock.

So that we can mark
future Merchant Navy Days across all Royal Museums Greenwich
sites, we are currently in the process of acquiring two further 'red dusters' which will be flown on the National Maritime Museum and Royal Observatory buildings
next September 3."

A council spokesperson said: "The royal borough raised the Red Ensign to raise awareness and to remember the brave men and women of the Merchant navy past and present. On Sunday September 6, the mayor and mayoress and the borough's Deputy Lieutenant Pieter van der Merwe also attended a service and wreath laying in Tower Hill."

Restored castle pulls in the crowds

by Dick Townsend-Smith

HISTORIC Severndroog Castle has been visited by more than 100,000 people since it reopened to the public just over a year ago.

The astonishing numbers are a tribute to the group of enthusiasts who brought the unique 18th Century Grade 2* listed folly tower in the Shooters Hill woodlands back to its former glory, following a major restoration.

The Severndroog Building Preservation Trust was set up in 2003 by a small group of committed local people who were determined that the castle should be restored with the public having full access. It had last been opened to the public 25 years earlier.

Since its reopening, the Trust has been exploring the stories of its previous owners and visitors, including the literary connections between the castle and different authors such as Laurence Sterne and Algernon Blackwood. The castle is generally open to visitors from 12.30pm to 4.30pm on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays, has a learning centre, tea room and is available for hire.

Severndroog will be taking part in the Open House London weekend on September 19 and 20, when it will be among the many classic buildings and landmarks open for free. In Royal Greenwich, visitors will be able to explore more than 20 buildings, including Charlton House, the Royal Naval College and University of Greenwich's Stockwell Street building, Trinity Hospital, Woolwich Town Hall, the Ravensbourne college on the Greenwich Peninsula and many more.

Cllr Miranda Williams, the borough's cabinet member for culture and creative industries, said: "Royal Greenwich has its own unique set of buildings which include outstanding examples of architecture from all eras - it's one of the reasons that make Greenwich a must-see destination for visitors throughout the year. We are particularly proud to showcase them during the Open House weekend and encourage local residents, as well as visitors to explore, learn about and celebrate Greenwich's historical buildings."

Syrian refugees are welcome here

THE council has said it is ready to take in refugees from war-torn Syria, after the government agreed to re-settle 20,000 Syrian refugees in Britain by 2020.

Councillor Chris Kirby, cabinet member for housing, has thanked local people for their offers of help. He said: "The Royal Borough of Greenwich is ready to welcome refugees fleeing the crisis in Syria. Residents will no doubt have been moved by the tragic scenes from the past few days and weeks. I know councillors have received a large volume of calls and emails from concerned local residents asking how the council can help out. We have made clear that we are ready and willing to play our part but that central government has to recognise that it has to cover any costs associated with this international problem."

Meanwhile, in Plumstead the Salvation Army has been overwhelmed by donations since it put out an appeal for men's clothes, toiletries, tents and sleeping bags to be sent to migrants camped out in Calais.

Steve Callister, whose wife Clare runs the church in White Hart Road, said: "We are doing it because, whether we agree with the political situation or not, they are still human beings who are suffering and we are trying to help them."

The Plumstead church collected two transit-sized vanloads of donations in just a few days. These are now on their way to France. Said Steve: "We had more donations than we had expected, and the Salvation Army in Hythe, Kent offered to drive them over the Channel for us using their two vans. Our appeal just got bigger and bigger."

The church is no longer able to accept any more donations but has thanked local people for their kindness and generosity.

Anyone wanting to give money to help families in Syria can donate via websites such as the United Nations Refugee Agency site at donate.unhcr.org/international/syria

Police appeal for new squad volunteers

THE police are launching a campaign for people to come forward and sign up as Met Police volunteers in the royal borough.

They want people for up to 10 hours a month to help with a range of tasks, such as admin, role-playing for police training, supporting neighbourhood police teams and Specials, and working on reception desks.

A recruitment campaign is running from September 25 to October 8. Special stands giving more details about becoming a Met Police Volunteer will be on display in local libraries.

A police spokesman said: "It feels good to be appreciated, and as a volunteer with the Met Police that's something you'll experience on a regular basis. Plus, of course, the satisfaction that comes from giving something back to the community and helping keep our city safe."

"Volunteers benefit the police in a multitude of ways. They bring a wide range of skills and experience from their daily lives. Their contribution allows officers and staff to spend more time doing what they're trained to do, which improves the service we provide. And they act as advocates for the police, increasing understanding in the communities in which they live and work."

The volunteers come from every kind of background. But they need to be 18 or over, a resident in the UK for at least three years, and want to make a difference. Volunteers must work, live or study in a London borough and be able to commit at least 10 hours each month. Everyone who joins must provide two references, pass standard police security checks and complete a confidential health questionnaire. Pride in your appearance and good all-round communication skills are also a must.

Arresting sight

ARRESTING SIGHT: The Mayor of Royal Greenwich, Cllr Norman Adams, was stopped, searched, and arrested for theft when he visited St Paul's Academy in Finchale Road, Abbey Wood, last Wednesday evening (September 9).

However, his good name was secure because it was all part of a training exercise for the Greenwich Police Cadets, who meet at the school. Cllr Adams was paying a goodwill visit to see what they do, and volunteered to play the part of a crook.

Chief Supt Helen Millichap, the borough commander, said: "It is important that our cadets can learn the correct police procedures and practise them. I am very pleased that Cllr Adams was a good sport and played the role of a villain."

Chance to reward the top volunteers

DO you know of a voluntary organisation in the community which helps change lives for the better?

Or can you think of an amazing local person who gives up his or her time freely and willingly to help others?

If so, the Greenwich Action for Voluntary Service (GAVS) wants to hear from you. GAVS, which supports local charities to help them operate successfully, is looking for nominations for an awards ceremony at Woolwich Town Hall on October 15. It will be an evening get-together for dozens of local organisations to celebrate their work. Each winner will receive £200 and a certificate.

One of last year's winners was Dupe Makinde, director of the God's Grace Foundation in West Thamesmead, who received an award for the positive impact the foundation had on children and young people. Dupe said: "Being nominated for an award motivates the organisation because they are getting recognition for the work they are doing. It also helps charities get more funds because and that will help them to continue their good work."

Nominations are wanted for people who have contributed to:

- * Community cohesion
- * Been the most effective representative from the voluntary and community sector
- * Had a positive impact on young people
- * Had a positive impact on health and wellbeing
- * Made a significant contribution as an individual.

The nomination form is available at www.goo.gl/fzlHoc. The deadline for entries is 5pm on September 23.

Greenwich Peninsula plan

development will create 13,000 new jobs.

It also means up to £115 million will become available from the developers for community facilities and infrastructure such as transport and road improvements.

The council's planning board gave the scheme the go-ahead last Tuesday (September 8). It will also require agreement from the Mayor of London.

Greenwich peninsula has been transformed from what was a decommissioned gas works. It's already home to the world's most successful entertainment venue, The O2 Arena, thousands of new homes, a new luxury hotel, and Ravensbourne digital design college. Planning permission has also recently been given to site London's first cruise terminal at the peninsula.

The next stage of development will include:

- 13,000 new homes, including nearly 4,000 earmarked as 'affordable' - 70% will have rents at half the market rate. It means a four-bed flat is £200 a week instead of £400
- The demolition and full rebuild of the North Greenwich tube and bus stations
- A new 40,000sq metre film studio, creating 1,500 new jobs
- New business space, totalling 60,000sq metres
- 24,000sq metres of new retail, food and

NEW HOMES AND COMMUNITY FACILITIES: computer graphics show how the new development will transform the peninsula drink outlets

- A new hotel, and possibly a second one
- Two new schools - a primary and a 'through school'
- A new 20,000sq metre visitor attraction
- A new ferry jetty terminal
- A five kilometre running track around the whole site
- A new healthcare facility
- Expansion of the Ravensbourne digital college.

Council leader Denise Hyland said: "Without doubt, this is one of the most exciting developments in London - of great significance to the capital as a whole, as well as to our borough. This scheme will bring the long-term regeneration of Greenwich Peninsula to fruition, cementing what is a whole new district for London providing housing and jobs for tens of thousands of people and landmark new facilities and buildings."

During last week's meeting concerns were raised about the height of the buildings and the impact of such a large scale development on the area.

The council leader added: "I know there are real concerns about the scale of this development and those have been fully considered during the decision-making process."

"The board felt that the plans are right for the area and for London as a whole, providing so many new homes at a time of a critical shortage in London. Yes, some of the buildings are tall, but these are mainly situated to the north just opposite Canary Wharf whose towers will dwarf the Peninsula structures. It is also important that where a large number of new buildings are proposed the infrastructure and layout is right and we feel this development will deliver a hugely enhanced environment."

Councillor Danny Thorpe, Royal Borough of Greenwich Cabinet Member for Regeneration and Transport said: "This scheme brings what regeneration should - new homes and facilities for local people, thousands of new jobs, and it puts to excellent use a large site which until a few years ago was empty contaminated land."

It's all plain sailing for Storm

ANY PORT FOR STORM: the young sailor encourages others for last year's tall ships event

by Zach Emmanuel

A YOUNG shipmate at last year's tall ships regatta is steering a course to university to study maritime sciences.

Former John Roan student Strom Sukoo is off to Plymouth University to study Navigation and Maritime Science.

The 19 year-old from Charlton was an ambassador for last September's Royal Greenwich Tall Ships Regatta and sailed on a tall ship from Falmouth to Greenwich as part of the five-day event. Storm was one of the first to sign up for the chance to get a place on a tall ship. As part of his role as ambassador he also went into local schools to encourage other young people to apply for crew places and to take up maritime activities.

His interest in sailing was sparked by a taster day at the AHOY sailing centre in Deptford nine years ago and over the years he has worked his way up to instructor level.

After clinching A levels in sport, science and music he decided to go to university to further his sailing education, and will be one of 12 people on the course starting this week.

He explained he'll be learning about navigation, ship stability and ship management in order to achieve a certificate of competency.

"I'm looking forward to learning new things, although I've been sailing for eight or nine years, there's still a lot of learning and I'll be building on my knowledge."

It will be a three-year course with the option for an additional placement year. Storm has his eyes set on becoming a ship captain later in his career: "After my degree, I wish to start work on merchant ships such as cruise ships, or super yachts. Over the next 15 to 20 years my aim is to work my way up from a Third Mate up to Chief or First Mate, then maybe to Captain or Master of a ship."

And the young sailor stressed: "A lot of people think you need lots of money for sailing but that's not the case. There are many sailing centres for youths in Greenwich and nearby and there are lots of options to get involved in sailing."

Remember Sir William Colebrooke

by Simon Banks

WHAT'S in a name? That's what Woolwich resident and history enthusiast, Patricia Holmes asked before she began unravelling the historic records of the man whose name is displayed on Colebrooke House residential and care home where she lives.

The council-owned block off Woolwich Common was named after Sir William Colebrooke to reflect the historical connections with the Royal Academy.

After conducting her own research at Greenwich Heritage Centre, Patricia unearthed the colourful and humbling story of Sir William Colebrooke – a local ex-military man and now wants to dedicate his birthday – November 9 – as 'Sir William Colebrook Day' in his memory.

After living in Blackheath for over 40 years, Patricia, 84, and husband Michael, 85, moved into Colebrooke when it first opened in 2011. Patricia's family has a rich military and naval history - her father brigadier John Murray Rymer-Jones served as a gunner in the Royal Artillery in Woolwich before joining the metropolitan police.

"I have always been interested in the military because of my family and I have always been passionate about history, particularly local history. When I moved here, nobody knew who William Colebrooke was and they even spelt his name wrong on the signage on the building! I was determined to find out more about him," said Patricia.

DEDICATED: Patricia shows some of the records she found about Sir William Colebrooke (inset) one of the few known depictions of him and the Colebrooke House sign

The mum-of-four, who wrote medical books, added: "I think what fascinates me most about him is that he was very human, he had good values for his time and took great responsibility in helping others and I think it would be wonderful to commemorate him."

Colebrooke's potted bio

Sir William MacBean George Colebrooke was born in Charlton in 1787, he joined the Royal Military Academy in Woolwich at the age of 15 and was commissioned a lieutenant in the Royal Artillery.

From 1805 to 1809 he served mainly in Ceylon, Sri Lanka and in India, later he was appointed to the Commission of Eastern Enquiry in 1823. Colebrooke married his cousin Emma Sophia Colebrooke in 1820 and had three daughters.

Between 1823 and 1837 Colebrooke served in parts of Africa and the Caribbean, in July 1840 he left Antigua and after an extended leave was appointed lieutenant governor of New Brunswick on 26 March 1841. In 1856 he returned to service with the army, rising to the rank of general in 1865 and on February 6 1870 died at his home in Salthill, near Slough.

Colebrooke was a modern man with liberal views, very uncommon by comparison with his predecessors and helped introduced responsible government in New Brunswick in 1841 and was also at the forefront of helping liberated black slaves find work after slavery laws were abolished in 1833.

The Big London ENERGY SWITCH

A scheme to help Londoners get a better deal on their gas and electricity bills

Over 5000 Greenwich residents have registered for the Big London Energy Switch since the scheme began. The results from February 2015 were the best yet – with average savings in Greenwich of over £250 and winning tariffs better than anything available direct from suppliers or via price comparison services.

How does the scheme work?

The Big London Energy Switch is a collective switching scheme being run by the Royal Borough of Greenwich and a number of other councils in London

By gathering together a large number of people who want to lower their gas and electricity bills the Big London Energy Switch, using a third party 'switching provider', can encourage energy companies to offer their lowest prices

Once registration is closed, all the energy companies are invited to offer their best prices to everyone who registered

You will then receive details of exactly how much money you could potentially save by switching if you accept the offer

You can choose to accept the offer or not or call 020 8921 5100 to find out about other ways to register

Alan gets on his bike for hospice

FUND-RAISING cyclist Alan Canning (pictured) will be pedalling 27 miles to raise funds for Greenwich & Bexley Community Hospice at the annual Big Bike Ride next month. He has raised almost £10,000 in sponsorship for the hospice on Bostall Hill, Abbey Wood, since he first took part in the event in 2007 after his wife Patricia was cared for by the hospice. He said: "It was the help and support from the hospice that ensured that my wife lived out the rest of her life with minimal suffering and discomfort. The help we received is a debt which can never be repaid."

The Big Bike Ride is the largest sponsored cycling event in South East London, and takes in the sights and sounds of the River Thames. Cyclists can choose from three start points at the Cutty Sark in Greenwich, the Firepower! museum in Woolwich or Morrisons in Erith, and can cycle a 12 or 27 mile cycle route. AS pupils return to school for the new term, hundreds of parents have been signing their child up to take advantage of free school meals. SIMON BANKS had lunch with pupils from Middle Park Primary to find out why...

Serving up success

A HEALTHY square meal each day gives pupils the balance of nutrients they need to stay active and improve concentration - that's why royal borough schools have been serving meals that are cooked each day using only fresh ingredients.

A total of 2,850,000 school meals are served every year in schools across the royal borough, providing children with the key nutritional dietary requirements and saving families money.

Incito Education Catering, formerly known as GS Plus Catering, was set up by the royal borough and runs catering in a large number of schools across the borough. The steps it's taken to improve menus, in partnership with schools and the council, has made a big difference to school dinners.

Over 90% of the new menu ingredients are freshly sourced and prepared, with food prepared in the healthiest way possible - for example nothing is fried. All ingredients are fresh - with bread baked on school premises in the morning.

It all ties in with the Good Food in Greenwich partnership, which brings together caterers, the council, schools, food businesses and community groups to promote healthy, affordable and sustainable food in schools and across the borough.

● For more info on Good Food in Greenwich visit www.goodfoodingreenwich.org

Cllr John Fahy, the royal borough's cabinet member for children's services, said: "It's fantastic that children who attend royal borough schools are getting the very best healthy meals. Our support of the Good Food in Greenwich charter means the quality of our food and preparation standards far exceed government guidelines. And the increasing take up of school dinners reflects the hard work of schools, caterers and the council. I hope more children continue to enjoy eating at school and I would encourage parents to sign up for a school meal for their children - especially if they qualify for free meals."

On average families save up to £340 a year per child when they eat free school meals. All infant children in Reception, Year One and Year Two are entitled to a free school meal. Children in Years Three, Four, Five and Six, as well as secondary school pupils, can claim free school meals if eligible for one of the following benefits:

- Income Support, Income-based Jobseeker's Allowance (JSA)
- Income-related Employment and Support Allowance
- Support under part six of the Immigration and Asylum Act 1999
- Child Tax Credit (provided you do not receive Working Tax Credit and your annual income does not exceed £16,190)
- Pension Credit Guarantee and Child Tax Credit.
- Claiming free school meals is simple, just ask for a form at the school office or visit www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/schoolmeals

Pupils in all year groups gave their dinners the thumbs up and were keen to tuck in to the spread of tasty hot and cold treats during a busy breaktime last Tuesday.

Keelan Portanier, aged seven, said:

"I like sausage and mash and chicken and rice best, I also like eating fruit and there is always lots to choose from. I like watermelon and apples best because they are juicy and sweet."

Jamie Oliver gives his seal of approval

CELEBRITY chef Jamie Oliver praised pupils at Charlton Manor Primary School for their attitude towards healthy eating in a new Channel 4 programme called 'Jamie's Sugar Rush'. The show brought attention to the school's commitment to healthy eating and its use of food to support literacy, numeracy and science teaching. The tv cook also complimented its state-of-the-art teaching kitchen, and use of two chefs - one for school meals and one to work in the teaching kitchens - as well as its commitment to growing plants and vegetables in the school gardens. Charlton Manor also hosts a Food Education Conference during the summer attended by guests from the food industry.

Menu is a winner

"When my lunch I feel like I have more energy. My favourite lesson is English." The children get a menu with different foods available on different days and the menu rotates on a three-week basis so that it never becomes boring. Meals are made up of all the major food groups and the children can help themselves to much extra fruit and veg as they like. Middle Park's catering manager Vickie has been recognised for coordinating lunch times by being nominated for 'Educating Awards' and has been shortlisted in the final three candidates for London. She said: "The children love the new menu and the new design of the dinner hall and they get really excited at lunch time. Nothing gives me more pleasure than seeing the children really enjoy the food they eat and being able to play my part in helping to educate them in the importance of healthy eating and to try food they would not necessarily eat at home." It's not just in the dinner hall that pupils are sharing their excitement about food. They're also getting inspired to take up cooking themselves, and with help from the school and the catering team, three pupils were entered in the McDougalls young baking competition. "Three boys, Jack Woodford, Moriel Boateng and Victor Rodrigues travelled to the competition in Birmingham with me and baked a Victoria sponge cake. Out of 120 applicants

The boys came in second place out of 120 applicants, which is a massive achievement," Donna explained. Jack, aged ten from Eltham told GT: "When I am big I want to become a chef and have my own restaurant." And parents are being won over by the focus on school meals; Faye Craig, whose daughters Chloe and Lily attend the school, said: "One is a fussy eater and it's quite comforting to know that at school she's being offered a good range of food to choose from and she has always enjoyed the food at school." Lailee Gilani-Richards' mother, Neda Gilani said: "I am really happy that my daughters are eating well at school, they really like the food and it's a big help that the meals are free." Head teacher Donna Adkinson, said: "The kitchen plays an integral part in the school and we are very lucky to have a fantastic catering manager and catering staff that provide our children with the very best nutritional diet that is both enjoyable and healthy. The afternoon lunch plays an important part in teaching too, as the children are more engaged on a full stomach and settled. The staff joins the children for lunch in the hall too, which is a really nice opportunity for them to talk to each other in a different way and enjoy the food together as families do at home over dinner."

Take your pick at comedy orchard

LAUGHTER returns to the National Maritime Museum for the Magners Greenwich Comedy Festival from September 16-20 with comedians including Reginald D Hunter, Adam Buxton, Ed Byrne and many more. This year's comedy extravaganza is the biggest yet with the Big Top and Apple Top hosting even more shows for another round of award-winning comedy. A fabulous and free programme of comedy, cabaret, music, cider sampling and more will also be on offer in the Magners Orchard - a cider-centric oasis forming the heart of the festival alongside bars, gourmet street food and a pop-up restaurant bringing the ultimate festival dining experience.

Launched in 2009, and originally funded by the royal borough, the festival has hosted some of the biggest and best names in the business and comedy lovers from across London and beyond will flock to see the likes of David O'Doherty, Tim Key, Bridget Christie, Paul Foot, Sara Pascoe and Nick Helm. Festival organiser Cass Briggs said: "The festival is all about presenting amazing comedy in stunning surroundings and it doesn't get much better than in front of the Queens House at the National Maritime Museum. On one side Greenwich Park and the Observatory, the other the Old Royal Naval College, River Thames and towers of Canary Wharf, it really is a beautiful spot. We had a great first year last September and can't wait to return for more comedy good times!" TOWN centre streets will come alive with costumes, dancing, music and community stalls when carnival comes to Woolwich this weekend.

Saturday, September 19 will see the first in what is set to be an annual celebration bringing neighbouring communities and visitors together for a day of collective summer festivities. 'Feeling Good' is the theme of the event – and it aims to promote positive health and well-being with all the things that make us feel good.

The day runs from 12pm and includes a 1.30pm parade from Royal Arsenal through Woolwich spreading dance, colour and carnival sounds through to General Gordon Square, where the celebration continues until 5pm. There'll be entertainment on a main stage powered by Unit 137 - a collective of DJs, vocalists and instrumentalists - and a host of local talent including a steel pan band, local dance ensembles and live vocalists. A spread of local stallholders will also provide a range of tasty food and local crafts.

The carnival is organised by the Woolwich Carnival Community Committee, a voluntary group of local residents, community groups, art organisations and schools and will be the debut of an annual celebration bringing neighbouring communities together for a day of collective summer festivities. It's supported by the royal borough, Oxleas NHS Trust and other community support bodies including the Big Lottery and The Monument Trust.

Royal Borough of Greenwich's Choice Based Lettings Scheme

Edition 459

BIDDING FOR PROPERTIES

People on the Housing register are able to bid for all properties, regardless of their banding. You must be eligible for the size of property and bids will be considered in the following order:

First Band A, followed by Band B both in priority date order.
Those in Band C will then be considered in registration date order.

Please note that there will still be some properties with age restrictions so only people of this age group can apply for these.

BAND

- A is for applicants in unsatisfactory housing, including people moving due to demolition and those underoccupying their homes.
- B is for applicants the Royal Borough of Greenwich must prioritise according to the law, particularly homeless people, and others with an urgent need to move for medical or welfare reasons.
- C is for all applicants on the housing register, including those that are in priority bands A and B.

How do I apply?

Get on the list

First, you've got to be on the housing waiting list to join the scheme. If you're not, register an application on line at www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk

Find your applicant number

It will be on the letter you've already had from the Royal Borough of Greenwich about the new scheme. You'll need that number and the reference number of the property you're after, which will be on the advert.

Pick out your ideal property

by looking in Greenwich Time or regularly checking the website:

www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

Click on your preference on the website. If you don't have a computer, you can always use one for free at either The Eltham or Woolwich Centre or a local library.

Apply in one of three ways

- Text bidding is now available and the number to use is 07786207913. For further information please see page 2, or
- Phone the 24-hour hotline 020 8921 4340. It's an automatic push-button system and calls will be charged at the normal local rate, or
- Via the Royal Borough of Greenwich's website www.royalgreenwich.gov.uk/homes

The next edition of GreenwichHomes will be available on Wednesday 23 September 2015 at midday. Closing date for all applications for this issue is midnight on Sunday 20 September 2015.

people, socialise and improve their physical fitness, self-esteem and overall happiness.

Over five thousand disabled players have experienced the fun and friendship of sport through the league since its launch in 2004 and over the years its success has led to a wider range of sports being made available to all ages, including tennis and cricket.

Sharon Brokenshire MBE, SLSL founder and project manager, said: "Attendance was excellent, attracting young disabled adults from all over and outside of the borough. They showed so much enthusiasm to be a part of the fun of the tennis festival. Everyone was able to access the activities at an appropriate level for their ability. We organised a fun cricket session afterwards which proved to be really popular, inspiring us to offer further sessions on Fridays. After the summer tennis festival we introduced a small-sided cricket session and we are intending to continue these on Fridays from 12 midday till 1pm. We welcome disabled players of all ages and abilities and our ethos is to have fun and keep fit."

On Thursday (September 17) the league kicks off a new football season offering small-sided and six-a-side football at London Marathon Playing Fields. Running from 10am-2pm, it also includes a walking football tournament for all players.
